

Schnitzer Group

Product development planning is based on a “zero-failures” approach. At the same time digital team communication and rapid technological changes in the production environment are placing growing demands on all of the parties. These factors can quickly turn projects into complex undertakings and augment the risk of failure in the project.

The Schnitzer Group is a globally operating, technical service provider. With our agile approach of “Systemic Projectmanagement” we pursue projects and their teams with strategic and operational creative ideas and unconventional suggestions. We combine projectmanagement with comprehensive technical knowledge and social competence. Our focus is on the project objective, despite of hierarchical constraints and prevalent departmental thinking. We communicate and act diplomatically and technically versed. The result is a balanced, transparent and positive project atmosphere – the basis for our success.
